

SECOND VISIT IS PAID PERNAMBUCO BY BIG ZEPPELIN

Fights Strong Head Winds On Its Return From Rio

MAKES FINE LANDING

Twenty-Four Hours Required
For Flight of 1,100
Miles

PERNAMBUCO, May 26 — (INS) — After a night-long battle with severe head-winds which hampered its progress northward along the Brazilian coast, the dirigible Graf Zeppelin arrived here today at 8.35 a. m. local time (7.35 a. m. Eastern Standard Time).

Despite the early hour, thousands of persons cheered the huge air liner in the streets as it swept through the skies in its second visit to this city. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, headed straight for the Jeguia Air Field, where the Zeppelin first landed after crossing the Atlantic Ocean for the sixth time last week.

The Graf circled the field once, and then nestled slowly down toward the red and white stub mooring mast which had been erected especially for its first visit. A trained crew of soldiers grabbed the landing ropes and lowered the huge ship gently toward the earth.

Slow time was made on the journey northward from Rio de Janeiro due to the head winds. The Graf made little more than 50 miles an hour during any part of the trip.

Approximately 24 hours were required for the 1,100-mile flight to Pernambuco from the Brazilian capital.

All arrangements have been completed for re-fueling and provisioning the Graf for its flight to Lakehurst, N. J., with a scheduled stop at Havana. The time of starting is still problematical, but it is thought likely Dr. Eckener will give the cast-off order some time early Tuesday.

Aided by their previous experience, the ground crew had little difficulty in attaching the airship to the mooring mast. The ship was anchored safely at 9.10 a. m. 8.10 eastern daylight saving time, less than three-quarters of an hour after its arrival over the city.

The huge crowd at the air field again gave the passengers and crew a vociferous welcome.

Father of Janet Gaynor To Appear in Person at Grand

Frank Gaynor, in person, the father of Janet Gaynor, the popular little star of "Sunny Side Up" and now of "High Society Blues," will be presented to the patrons of the Grand Theatre tonight and tomorrow night by Manager Edward Lynn, in conjunction with the showing of Miss Gaynor's latest success, "High Society Blues."

Mr. Gaynor is at present a resident of Bristol, being associated with Charles Williamson, of Radcliffe street, in the wall paper business. This is twice that the father of an international star has been a resident of Bristol. A few years ago the father of Lenore Ulrich was in business on Mill street. Mr. Gaynor will be introduced from the stage of the Grand Theatre tonight and tomorrow night, and will tell some of the interesting sidelights of Janet's private life.

Mr. Lynn, always on the lookout for the benefit of his patrons, has induced Mr. Gaynor to be at the Grand and meet the patrons in order that the theatre-goers might hear of the way he taught his famous little daughter the first things that she ever knew in the line of acting, how he taught her to dance, and how nobly she responded.

"High Society Blues" will be the attraction at the Grand for three days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with a matinee on Monday and Wednesday. All who have witnessed this successor to "Sunny Side Up" say that it surpasses that glowing success. It has five great song hits of the same calibre, and the story is refreshing and pleasing.

Crowds have been turned away from every theatre in which it has been shown, and the same is expected here. Be early.

IN APPRECIATION

We wish to express our thanks to all who gave assistance in order to make the events of Girls' Week successful. We appreciate the co-operation from all sources, and are thankful for donations, time and talent given, help given during the various contests, at the time of the parade, and assistance of every kind.

Miss Mary A. Ennis Dies At Bensalem Twp. Home

The late Miss Mary A. Ennis will be buried from her Bensalem Township home, Wednesday, with interment in St. Dominick's Cemetery, Holmesburg. Death occurred on Saturday, after the woman had suffered an attack of cerebral apoplexy.

The deceased is survived by three sisters and two brothers: Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Ennis, of Bensalem; Mrs. Ellen Hogan, of Philadelphia; and Thomas and Michael Ennis, of Bensalem Township. The deceased was the daughter of the late Michael and Mary Fitzgerald Ennis.

Funeral will be held from the Ennis home on Wednesday morning at 8.30, with Solemn Requiem Mass at St. Charles' R. C. Church, Cornwells Heights, at 10 o'clock. Rev. Father Flood will officiate. Friends may call Tuesday evening at the late home of the deceased.

SEEKING COUNTYWIDE AID IN PLANNING WORK

Committee Named to Lay the Groundwork of Association for Bucks County

PARKWAY IS OBJECTIVE

DOYLESTOWN, May 26—For the purpose of laying the groundwork for a county-wide organization to work with the Regional Planning Federation, a group of Bucks countians met in the auditorium of the Bucks County Trust Company. There were about twenty-five present, including Albert Rosenthal, noted painter and new owner of historic "Hutnagle," New Hope; Colonel George VanOrden, Mayor John A. Flood, D. B. Ohliger, Postmaster Edward Dubs and several Councilmen from New Hope; C. J. Koller and others from Solebury.

Interest was focused recently on the importance of a Bucks County organization at a dinner given by Mr. Rosenthal, and this further meeting was held to discuss plans for an organization which would have representation from every community in the county.

Joseph T. Woodruff, chief planning engineer of the commission, was present in an advisory capacity.

What is planned for Bucks county is similar to action taken in other counties of the tri-state area to aid the Regional Planning Federation in deciding what plans for the future are desirable for Bucks county as well as the other counties involved in the area of 4,000 square miles—highways, bridges, sanitation, parkways, water supplies, and so forth.

Bucks county, it was pointed out, will be vitally affected by the plans because through it runs not only the Maine-to-Miami highway, but four or five other principal highways and other by-pass roads which were designed to take care of traffic for many years in the future, based on surveys showing the trend of population; the necessity for unified action to prevent New York State from depleting the (Continued on Page 4)

"MARRYING MARIAN" TO BE GIVEN TWO NIGHTS

Croydon Pupils to Present
Delightful Musical
Comedy

SEVERAL PARTICIPATE

"Marrying Marian," a delightful musical comedy in two acts, will be presented tonight at the Croydon Theatre and tomorrow evening at the Newportville fire station, by pupils of the Croydon public school.

The play is the story of a handsome life guard, who visits a girls' seminary, and is willing to serve as janitor just to be near the girl of his choice. Disastrous results follow his visit.

The comedy is under the direction of Miss Hortense Evans, and all participating are seventh and eighth grade students of the Croydon school.

Those taking part and the characters they represent are: Simpson, a supposed butler, Arnold Severns; Prudence McWhiffle, an elderly teacher, Ruth Reitenbaugh; Marian Stanton, a popular student, Gustina Ryan; Ruth Ripley, her roommate, Ruth Collins; Dr. Bohunkus, head of Hillendale Seminary, Leonard Lewis; Mrs. Bohunkus, his better half, Anna Mae Moran; Charles F. Smith, a professor by proxy, Robert Cameron; Cicero Socrates Smith, a janitor by necessity, Herbert Scharg.

The chorus of girl students includes: Laura Cameron, Eliana Cherubina, Doris Crossly, Hester Courtney, Dorothy Waters, Edith Sorey, Marianna Mehner, Edythe Springer, Loretta Smith, Ruth Erny, Lillian Cameron, Betty Crawford.

The musical numbers are of the semi-popular type, and all tunes are light and catchy. They include "Let Me Show You the Way to Happyland," "Unconsciously," and "My Trixy from Dixie Land."

Miscellaneous Shower In Honor of Miss Heaton

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given by Miss Lydia Dickinson, of Glenside, on Friday evening, in honor of Miss Elsie Heaton, of Washington street.

The evening was pleasantly spent playing games and at a late hour, refreshments were served. The rooms were prettily decorated in pink and white.

During the evening, Miss Heaton was presented with many beautiful gifts.

The guests included: Elsie Heaton, Miss Margaret Johnson, Miss Margaret Neill, Miss Vera Donnell, Mrs. Frank Heaton, Serrill and George Heaton, all of Bristol, and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Berry and sons, Charles, Edmund and Clark, of Wyncote, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson and daughter, Lydia, of Glenside.

SURPRISE MRS. PETERSON

The teachers of the infant department of St. James's Episcopal Church recently surprised Mrs. Harry Peterson in her new home on Bellevue avenue, Langhorne. Mrs. Peterson was formerly a teacher in the infant department of the church. An enjoyable evening was spent playing the game of pinocle, and prizes were given to Mrs. Herman and Mrs. Mulholland. Refreshments were served and the guests returned to Bristol at a late hour.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD AT CEMETERIES

Sons of Veterans and Legion
Visit Tullytown and Cornwells Heights

ADDRESSES ARE MADE

Sons of Veterans, Col. J. M. Gosline Camp and Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion along with the members of the American Legion Auxiliary, Bugle Corps and Cadet Corps visited the cemetery at Tullytown and also at Cornwells Heights yesterday where memorial services were held.

At Tullytown the school children were met at the lower end of the borough and carrying large flags formed in line with the Sons of Veterans, Legion, Bugle Corps, Cadet Corps and Auxiliary and proceeded to the cemetery.

There was singing by the school children and recitations were given. The address was made by the Rev. Lewis, pastor of the Tullytown M. E. Church.

There was the usual salute fired after which taps were sounded. At Cornwells Heights the address was made by the Rev. J. B. D. Cook, pastor of the M. E. Church.

Both services were in charge of the Sons of Veterans.

THANK YOU!

I wish to publicly thank all who helped to make the first ward girls so successful during Girls' Week, and appreciate the co-operation extended along all lines.

Silk Flag and Standard Are Presented St. James's Church

St. James's Episcopal Church was filled last evening when a patriotic service was conducted by the rector, Rev. George E. Boswell, at which time Camp 89, Patriotic Order of Americans, presented to the church a handsome silk flag.

The groups attending the service included: Camp 89, P. O. of A.; Robert W. Bracken Post, 382, American Legion; American Legion Auxiliary; Cadet Corps; Camp Fire Girls; Boy Scout troops. All of these were the uniforms of the organizations with which they are affiliated.

One of the main numbers on the evening's program was the presentation of the silk flag, with a standard. The rector's sermon was upon "Memorial Day."

Patriotic songs were sung by the congregation, including "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "America," and "Onward Christian Soldiers." The choir selection was the "Recessional" by Kipling.

Result of Yesterday's Game
Croydon, 7; A. O. H., 5

By T. M. Juno

CROYDON, May 26.—A six-run rally in the eighth inning enabled Croydon Boys' Club to score a 7-5 victory over A. O. H. in a slow and listless game played here yesterday.

The victory was the first of the Bristol Twilight League for the Croydon Boys and puts them on top of the tail-end St. Ann's nine. The Croydon team is now but a half game below the Hibernians for fourth place position.

Until the eighth canto the Croydonites had collected but three meek hits from the sturdy pitching arm of Gene Lawler. He had fanned eleven batters and no one was expecting a rally. But suddenly the Croydon batters began to pop out hits one after another and before Mangano was rushed in to put the fire out six tallies had crossed the plate and the home towners had the game safely tucked away.

Previous to this inning, a run was counted by the resident team in the seventh inning. But Lawler had the game safely in check for the first six innings when goose eggs were chalked up for the Croydon team.

Tryon held the Hibernians in line fashion, having eleven strikeouts to his credit. His only bad innings were the third and seventh. All the visitors' runs were scored in these sessions.

WET VOTE TOTAL, 2390

DOYLESTOWN, May 26.—It took eight hours to complete the official primary election count in Bucks county. The count was made by the County Commissioners in Court Room No. 2. No great difference was noticed in the figures as compared to unofficial count received the night of election at the Republican headquarters here.

Gifford Pinchot led by 5479 over his nearest opponent, Francis Shunk Brown, who polled 2,986 votes. Phillips, the official count shows, polled 2,390 votes.

Senator Grundy received a total of 10,548 votes, or 7,916 more votes than Secretary of Labor Davis.

The high man on the Republican primary ticket in Bucks County was Congressman Henry W. Watson who polled a total of 11,934. Second high man was Senator Grundy with three opponents, and third high was State Senator Clarence J. Buckman, of Langhorne, who was nominated with 10,113 votes, or 7,709 over his opponent, Charles F. O'Brien, of South Langhorne.

PUBLICITY

The air commerce act requires the department of commerce to investigate the causes of all airplane accidents, to record its findings and conclusions and to make them public. When the law was passed in 1926 there were no precedents upon which to base legislation of this nature and, as a result, the statute was faulty in certain aspects.

No objections have been interposed against the administration of the act so far as the investigation and the recording of the causes of accidents are concerned. But Senator Bratton has been contending that the reports of the department do not fulfill the requirement that findings shall be made public. The department's defense is that the law does not protect it from legal consequences of making public its verdicts.

So Senator Bratton won a victory last week when he put through the Senate a resolution calling for complete information with respect to all accidents that have occurred since May 20, 1926, of which there is a record, including therein among other matters the names of persons involved, complete findings as to primary and contributing causes and full information about the pilots and the planes.

It is believed air commerce and aviation in general will benefit from full publicity on accidents, by showing them to be avoidable.

45 MILLION TOOTHBRUSHES

Consumption of 45,000,000 toothbrushes a year makes American teeth the cleanest in the world, but is not enough to keep every American tooth clean and free from defects. If every man, woman and child in the United States used a toothbrush and used it regularly the production of brushes would have to be doubled.

Dental hygiene is one of the most important branches of health education and cannot be too frequently and eloquently stressed for the benefit of both children and adults. It has only been in recent years that the public has realized the vital importance of sound teeth and the grave danger in defective and diseased teeth. In a way, the tooth is considered one of the vital organs. At least, with many persons it requires and receives more attention than those other organs the physiologists class as vital.

To the teeth, because of defects or disease, medical science has traced heart diseases, rheumatism, neuritis, kidney disorders, gastric ulcers and other organic and blood conditions which frequently prove fatal. Insanity can also result from oral disorders.

Everyone should have a dental examination at least every six months and parents should consult the dentist as frequently as the family physician. Dentists would be doing their patients a service if they would notify them when their teeth are due for an inspection.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

ITEMS OF INTEREST AS CLIPPED FROM NEWSPAPER FILES

Thirty-five years ago the Newtown Enterprise told of many interesting things about Lower Bucks county. In its issue dated May 25, 1895, the following were given:

The quarries in the upper end of Morrisville were in active operation.

James R. Whitlock, of Upper Makefield, white engaged in plowing, got entangled in the equipment and had one of his legs broken.

The illness of E. W. Martindell, teacher of the Hulmeville Grammar School, interrupted the preparations in his school for commencement day.

John W. Gregg, of London county, Va., was appointed teacher of history at George School to succeed Joseph M. Johnston.

A large pottery manufacturing concern was arranging to locate in Morrisville.

John Wildman, of Langhorne, who was stricken with serious illness while attending Yearly Meeting, was removed to his home and improving in health.

A public exhibition of some of the products of the manual training and science departments of George School was held at that place. Among the objects of interest were a miniature steam engine made by George Jessup and a dynamo on which George Doan was working. More than 350 visitors registered.

In the Doylestown Intelligencer dated May 8, 1886, the following appeared:

Believed to have eaten roots containing a poison, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry, Penn's Manor, and their hired man were taken violently ill. The previous day Mr. Henry found roots which he thought were horse radish. These were taken to the house and served at dinner. Soon after the noon hour Mr. Henry was taken violently ill in the potato field. Dr. Sands, of Tullytown, and Dr. Richards, of Fallsington, responded and expressed the belief that Mrs. Henry and the hired man as well as Mr. Henry had been poisoned by the roots. The trio was ill for several days.

red, white and blue hats and carrying red, white and blue parasols. These three also carried baskets of flowers.

The athletes from the second ward were dressed in white duck trousers, white blouses and white sailor hats and they also carried parasols to match the others.

All of the other participants from the ward were dressed in harmony with the color bearer and flower girls. There was a riot of color in the Third Ward delegation and no particular color scheme was followed. The group was headed by the Third Ward Harmonica band which in turn was followed by a little bit dressed as an aviatrix in an airplane.

A group of girls pushing baby carriages decorated to represent different flowers followed and were about 15 in number.

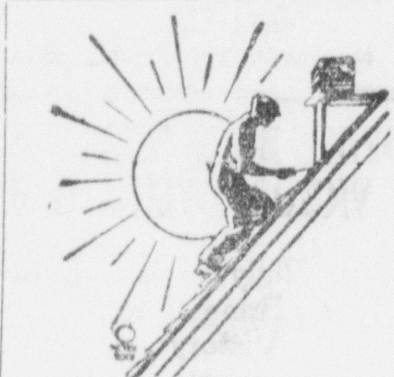

The others in the Third Ward line were dresses of various hues and large hair ribbons to match their dresses. White sashes with the lettering "Third Ward" in blue, added a touch which made the participants easily distinguished.

Each girl carried a pinwheel which also was of the same color as her dress and the effect was very attractive.

Third Ward athletes wore white and blue trunks and white jackets.

The Fourth Ward group marched proudly behind the ward banner made of green and white felt with large green block letters designating the ward.

Fourth Ward athletes came next in line wearing white blouses and blue skirts while marching. On the field the costumes were white trunks with

The balance of the division wore white dresses with the national colors as decorations, black slippers and light colored socks.

There was also a float on which were children between the ages of three and seven years with the May Queen seated upon her throne attended by her court.

All of the fourth ward group wore red, white and blue hats.

In the fifth ward division two little girls carried the ward banner and they were accompanied by two other girls each carrying an American flag. They wore white duck trousers and purple and white sashes.

The entire ward group was dressed in the same color scheme.

The athletes wore purple trunks and white blouses. Each child marching behind the ward banner carried an American flag.

Red, white and blue was also the color scheme for the girls of the sixth ward. The girls were dressed in white dresses with red, white and blue paper ribbon sashes, the same color parasols and the same color tams. There was a large American flag carried by a portion of the group.

A float carried Uncle Sam and the Goddess of Liberty attended by six little flower girls.

SYNOPSIS

David Wade flies with Stella Budgey, wife in name only to the brutal trader, O'Shane, to a South Sea Island. They prosper, but Moira, a half-caste girl they befriend, falls in love with David, and learning that Stella and David are not married, threatens to ruin him for herself. Following a fierce quarrel with David, Stella is carried out to sea in an endless boat. Moira refuses to lead her schooner for the search. David sets out in a cutter (which has just returned from Tema) and encounters O'Shane coming for his wife and for revenge.

"Found her!" he cried. "Yes—and you, too, my beauty! A fine chase you've given me! A fine chase! All over the place I've been. All these weary weeks! But I've got y' at last! Stealin' another man's wife, and makin' off with her. His lawful, wedded wife, mind y'! Y' infernal scoundrel! And everyone in Samora thinkin' what a nice decent sort of feller y' were! It's a thief y' are! A thief!"
"Listen to me a moment!" said Wade as calmly as he could. "What I want to know is Stella—" O'Shane interrupted with a further outburst of abuse.
"But I'll deal with you later, my beauty!" he ended. "It's Stella that I want just now. My little brown-haired Stella, who's my lawful wife." A sneer entered his tone. "I got a lot of things to say to Stella. We're goin' to have a nice little talk, me and Stella. Where is she? In the cabin? Out of my way!"

"A fine chase you lead me! But I've got you at last!"

"You haven't picked her up, then?"

O'Shane stopped.

"What do you mean by 'picked her up'?"

"We are looking for her. We don't know where she is."

The big man regarded Wade suspiciously.

"Tryin' to have a game with me, are y'?"

"It's no good my boy! Y' don't trick Mick O'Shane a second time. It can't be done—not by you, any way!"

"I wish to God it were only a trick!" cried Wade. And with that he gave a brief account of Stella's disappearance. Impressed by the sincerity of Wade's tone, O'Shane listened attentively.

At the end the big man ran a hand across his brow—a quick, distressful movement. His face had gone queerly pale.

"In a drifting canoe!" His tone was changed with horror. "At Tema they told me the Umus were on the war-path. They've got a scoundrel of a chief who eggs them on all the time—a feller named Kapa, who's been in white-man countries."

He looked across at his own vessel, looked with a certain wildness and frenzy. "Good God!" he exclaimed; and it was as though his soul had spoken rather than his lips, so throbbing and intense were the words.

And when he turned again it was as though he were a different being, as though some strange alchemy had changed him utterly in a moment.

"I—I found that canoe—her canoe!"

There was a cry from Lo-ora. Dolobe repeated the news in the Motogara tongue, and a great shout went up from the warriors and crew-boys. The sound died abruptly as O'Shane went on:

"Just before the rainstorm. It was drifting along, with nobody in it. I wondered how it came to be so far away from the land, so did me crew. There was a couple of arrows stickin' in it." Again his hand went to his brow with a quick, distressful movement.

For a moment all ordered thought fled from Wade's brain. Lo-ora began sobbing loudly. A pandemonium broke out among the warriors.

"Y' hated me, Stella!" cried O'Shane to himself. "Y' thought me everything that's bad. But I loved y'! I loved y'! I love y' still, Stella—"

"See!" came Moira's voice. She

People are more lonesome than they used to be. They are on the go so much that they are lonesome every time they happen at home.

Time is pictured as a man but must be a woman, for it is not said "Time will tell?"

A lady who had just given a dinner party met her doctor on the street the following day.

"I'm sorry, doctor," she said, "that you were unable to come to my dinner party last night; it would have done you good to be there."

"It has already done me good," he replied. "I have just prescribed for three of the guests."

"SURELY YOU HAVE A SISTER," implored ISOLENE

ATTENDANCE DECREASE ALARMS NAT'L LEAGUE

By Frank (Buck) O'Neill
I. N. S. Sports Writer
NEW YORK, May 26—(INS)—National League baseball finds itself coping with two problems in the West. There is the much-discussed lively ball and the alarming decrease in attendance.

With the single exception of Chicago, baseball fans are remaining away from the parks in thousands. The Giants did less business in Pittsburgh on this trip than they have done in years, and when the team played the Pirates there was a three-cornered battle on for the lead.

Not only was the attendance poor, but interest was at an ebb. It was a common sight to see squads of fans walk out along about the sixth inning, thoroughly disgusted with the track meets in fannels being run over the base lines.

This was not true only when the Giants clouted the ball. The fans gave long Bronx cheers for the Pirates when they slugged the ball to the flagpoles and into the stands. It seemed to be a clear cut case of fans being sated with Jack rabbit baseball. Barney Dreyfuss, wise and learned in the likes and dislikes of fans gave thought to the departing fans and still more thought to the tiers of yawning seats in the encircling stands.

No doubt Mr. Dreyfuss will support John J. McGraw in a demand for a ball of the same quality and resiliency as the one in use in 1919. Sam Breadon says that the ball has turned baseball into a sore silly joke and has ruined the game.

The enterprising Sam Breadon, who started the baseball world by inaugurating the Sunday double header in St. Louis, stands ready now to embark upon a more startling departure. Breadon is contemplating flood lights at Sportsman's Park and playing night baseball. He has been thinking of this since some of the major universities are planning night football.

Breadon cites the success of Des Moines with night baseball. The first night the players performed under the flood lights some 12,000 fans watched the experiment. One Monday night attendance was 1,200 while on the corresponding day a year previous only 250 in round numbers were on hand.

"If night baseball proved a success in Des Moines, there is no reason why it should not be a success in a big city like St. Louis," said Breadon. "I have reports on night baseball, and I am just about ready to try it here in St. Louis if local conditions do not improve."

"Our daily attendance has been poor," continued Breadon. "There are thousands of empty seats out there. Men who work in the daytime will welcome a chance to see a ball game, and they can come to the game. Therefore, it is worth a trial."

"At first I was criticized for instituting double-headers on Sunday, but we had more people at the park than we would have had by playing single games. My figures show that by having the park empty on Monday and playing two games on Sunday we gained something like $7,500 for ourselves and a good round figure for the visiting club."

SHARKEY AND SHIRES GOT VARYING RESULTS

NEW YORK, May 26—(INS)—To speak or not to speak—that is the question.

Take the case of Shires and Sharkey, a pair of blustering he-men of sportsland, who, according to present indications, should be sufficient to furnish you with some rather volatile statistics on how rich one may become by blowing his own bugle.

Today both Shires and Sharkey are strangely silent. If vocal chords were retailing at six millimeters a throw, they couldn't purchase enough to be heard by a rabbit one inch away. And don't think there aren't definite and unusually rational reasons why Art the Great and Jack the Gob should suddenly revert to silence—that enshrouded, mystic dame who tells you nothing and reveals less.

While clubbing the ball in a healthy manner and playing a decent all around game at first for the Chicago White Sox last year Shires maintained an incessant chatter afield and off-field. Afield, opposing players, his own manager and even his teammates became fairly disgusted with the gall he showed in appointing himself his own press agent. But Shires only added to this by donning spats and buying all the sportiest canes in town. Off-field, however, the customers experienced mingled feelings of resentment and appreciation. An annoying character but a colorful one.

All this ballyhoo for Shires naturally reflected upon the team and wherever went the White Sox, went the crowd. This pleased Shires and the Chicago front-office. The former was delighted in that he was becoming a drawing card and would be in line for an increase in currency the following year for his "it," while the latter was reveling in the dash of life afforded an otherwise dreary team and the ensuing monetary profits.

To add to his color, Shires became some sort of a prize-fighter in order to pass the winter months as well as enter a lucrative business. Shires will tell you he didn't succeed in his venture if you just say "George Trafton" to him and let it go at that but he will ardently aver that his becoming a boxer was incidental to his becoming a rich man. All of which, nevertheless, fell plenty short of his purpose—that of attaining a big increase in salary.

Now Art finds himself pulling downously objected to, after all his efforts ostensibly objected to after all his efforts at ballyhoo.

That's why Shires is silent at present.

Only one other present sports character has ever been able to match Shires for pure, unadulterated gabbing. That chap is Boston Jack Sharkey, who, at this very moment, is panicking his public as he goes about preparing for the Schmeling championship fight without as much as opening his mouth for the exercise alone. Sharkey, mind you, is spilling some very few egotistic expressions anent his prowess but in comparison to what he used to say about himself, he's struck dumb.

Yet Sharkey, unlike Shires, gained everything by his soap-box campaign. The Peantown Tar received his first opportunity by talking so long to Humbert Fugazy that even today the good Signor is chary of anyone who continues speaking beyond a few minutes stretch. Sharkey's talk centered about his ability to handle Harry Wills properly, and finally Fugazy, ear weary, consented to toss Sharkey in with the Black Panther at all costs.

After his first few important victories Jack's talking mania had the country by the ears and wherever Sharkey went his tongue was sure to follow. It wasn't until Jack Dempsey quashed him and Johnny Risko punned the life from him that he finally compromised to speak for no longer than twenty-three and a half hours a day, with no time out for meals.

But just like that, Sharkey decided that to transfer most of his energy from his tongue to his right arm wouldn't be a bad idea at all. So now he gabs, but at rare intervals. Most of the time he says what he wants to say with a good swat in the nose.

While Shires derived nothing but a lot of ballyhoo and abuse for his benevolent usage of the first person pronoun, Sharkey has capitalized on his "I am great, greater, greatest" attitude to such an extent, he now finds himself in a position where he can halt his tongue-wagging and still realize on his efforts.

Shires, doting upon the fact that Sharkey is in line for a few million dollars without having to resort to the usual first person ballyhoo, must feel like tendering himself a nice, refined kick where it hurts most. For he, in failing to keep quiet, has been quieted in an effective way.

If Shires had kept his mouth shut and given the air a chance to come through his nose maybe he would be in the same enviable position the big mutter and mumble man from Boston now finds himself in. So perhaps this has served to explain why Sharkey is silent.

Croydon Boys' Club Victors Over A. O. H.

First time this season, made the fielding sensation of the day when he rushed into centerfield to catch Sullivan's short fly. He turned a real flip-flop after the ball hit his glove but he held on to the horsehide.

G. Dougherty played wonderful ball afield for the losers and his hitting was also an aid in scoring the Hibernians' runs. He had a triple and single after his name, besides being hit by pitched balls on two occasions. On his other trip to the plate he was thrown out.

Score by innings:

First—Thompson struck out; G. Dougherty was hit with a pitched ball; Leyden forced Dougherty, Gleason to Triteschler; Mangan forced Leyden, Gleason to Triteschler.

Crossley and Triteschler were victims of Lawler's curves; Trindle singled over Thompson's head; Gleason was strikeout No. 3 of the inning.

Second—Holden singled through Triteschler; Holden stole second; McClaflerty singled Holden to third; Sullivan struck out; Mulligan lined straight to Tryon and Holden was doubled off third.

Piazza was called out on strikes; Tryon rolled to Leyden; Bock and Reese were handed passes to first; C. Hamm struck out.

Third—Lawler looked at a third strike; Thompson singled; G. Dougherty tripled to center, counting Thompson; Leyden struck out; Mangan beat out a hit to third, G. Dougherty scoring; Holden was safe on Piazza's error; McClaflerty hit a fly to Gleason.

Crossley hit to Lawler and went out at first; Triteschler and Trindle whiffed.

Fourth—Sullivan grounded out, Triteschler to Trindle; Mulligan was safe when Piazza threw high on his grounder; Lawler and Thompson died swinging at third pitches.

Gleason was taken care of by Thompson; Piazza lined a hit to center; Tryon and Bock could not connect with Lawler's pitches and fanned.

Fifth—For the second time a pitched ball struck G. Dougherty; Leyden struck out for the second time; a pitched ball struck G. Dougherty; Leyden struck out for the second time; Mangan's best was a liner which struck in Triteschler's mit; Holden breezed.

Reese struck out; Lake batted for Hamm and lifted a high fly to Lawler; Lawler tossed out Crossley.

Sixth—McClafferty was another of Tryon's strikeout victims; Sullivan's fly went to Lake; Piazza raced into left field for Mulligan's short lift.

Triteschler whizzed a hit to centerfield; Trindle fanned; Gleason forced Triteschler, G. Dougherty to Mangan; Piazza lined to Mangan.

Seventh—Lawler beat out a bunt to third base; Thompson bunted down the third base line and all hands were safe when Piazza threw too late to catch Lawler at second; G. Dougherty laid down a bunt towards first base and beat it out for a hit, filling the sacks; Tryon bore down and struck out both Leyden and Mangan; Holden caught one on the nose and whaled it to left field for a nice double, cleaning the cushions; Holden tried for third on the play and went out, Bock to Tryon to Piazza.

Tryon doubled over Mulligan's head; Check batted for Bock and struck out, only to reach first base when the third strike was a wild pitch; Tryon went to third on the play. Check stole second and when a double peg, Holden to Lawler to Mangan failed to organize, Tryon scored; Reese flew to Thompson; Thompson also caught Lake's fly and doubled Check off second.

Eighth—McClafferty went out, Gleason to Trindle; Triteschler ran to centerfield and made a wonderful catch of Sullivan's short hit; Mulligan was strikeout No. 11.

Crossley was safe on Thompson's misplay; Crossley went to second on a passed ball; Triteschler scored Crossley with a single to right field; Trindle fanned but reached first when J. Dougherty missed the third strike; Gleason planted a long two-bagger in left field, counting Triteschler and Trindle; G. Dougherty caught Piazza's foul fly; Tryon's single to right field, scored Gleason with the tying run; Check picked left field in which to knock his double which scored Tryon with the winning run; Check later scored on a passed ball and a wild pitch; (this was enough for Lawler and Mangan went into the box.) Reese struck and Lake ended the rally with a grounder to G. Dougherty.

Ninth—Lawler hit to Tryon and went out with the aid of Trindle; Thompson doubled to left; G. Dougherty rolled to Tryon, Thomson going to third; J. Brady lifted a fly to Piazza.

Seeking Countywide Aid in Planning Work

water supply in the Delaware, and the extreme importance of early action to protect the beauties of the Delaware River Valley, as well as to provide other parkways along the streams such as other counties are having put on maps to prevent the despoiling of natural recreational park sites and to take them over for public uses for all time.

One of the latter is the Crooked Billiet Battlefield Park and Boulevard, joining in Bucks and Montgomery counties in the vicinity of Hatboro, now well underway. Of extreme importance, it was explained, is similar action to provide a parkway along the Delaware River, at least from New Hope to Riegelsville.

To lay the groundwork of the organization which will carry on the educational campaign, Burgess George S. Hotchkiss, of Doylestown, who was made chairman, appointed Albert Rosenthal, Colonel George VanOrden, D. B. Oblinger and C. J. Koller.

Roughly, their plan is to prepare the educational matter necessary with the assistance of the Federation, including large scale maps which will readily show the projects in view; then pick key men and women in each community, inform them thoroughly concerning the purposes of the organization and have them organize their communities, with three group educational meetings in the county later to arouse interest, inform the public concerning the need for county-wide co-operation and proceed to take whatever action in the different sections necessary to help carry out the Federation plans on lines that meet with local approval.

RIVERSIDE THEATRE

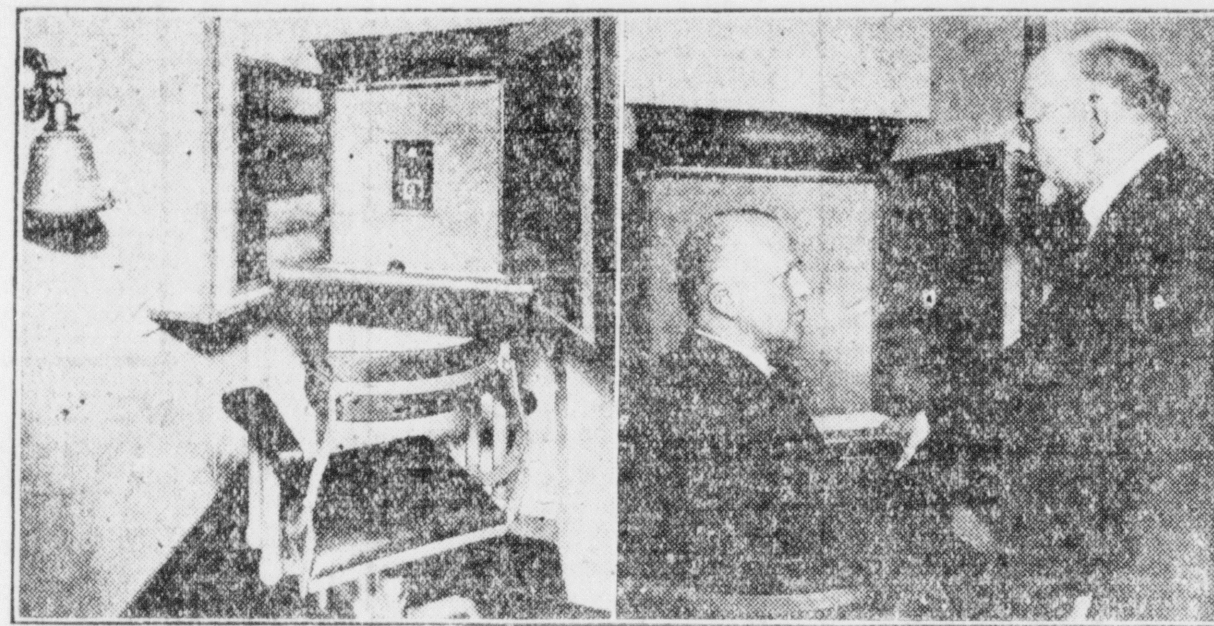

Requests of thousands of motion picture fans that Gloria Swanson appear again on the screen as the patrician lady, bedecked in ultra-smart and modish gowns, are acceded to in Hotchkiss, of Doylestown, who was singing United Artists picture, "The Trespasser," written and directed by Edmund Goulding, which opens at the Riverside Theatre tonight for three nights.

Not only is Miss Swanson seen at the height of her charm in "The Trespasser," but for the first time she is heard from the screen in this, her first all-dialogue film. She not only talks, she sings two songs. One is a standard work, well known to music lovers. The other, "Love," was especially composed for her by Edmund Goulding, author and director of the United Artists picture.

Laid as it is among the wealthy and fashionable "Four Hundred" in the Lake Shore Drive district of Chicago, the story of "The Trespasser" particularly lends itself to a brilliance in background and dress. At the same time, the vehicle embodies perhaps the most human theme Miss Swanson has yet interpreted.

BELL SCIENTISTS TEST TWO-WAY TELEVISION

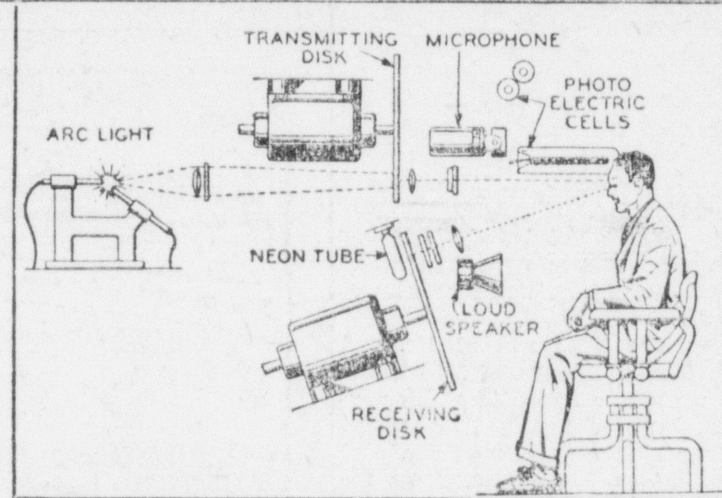

Two-way television is now an actuality, from an experimental standpoint. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company demonstrated recently in New York City a system of two-way television to supplement two-way telephone conversations, thus permitting the talking parties to see as well as hear each other.

The diagram to the right illustrates how the two-way television system operates. A beam of light from an arc is thrown by the scanning disc on the speaker's face, and reflected light is picked up by the photo-electric cells and transmitted electrically to the distant end. The incoming image is seen by means of the lower scanning disc and a neon tube.

Mr. Gifford pointed out that while substantial progress has been made on the technical side, general use of television on a commercial basis is not expected to be available for a long time to come.
